WOMEN BATTLE COURT PLAN

Washington, April 22 (INS).—Armed with a petition signed by 40,000 women, Miss Catherine Curtis, president of the Hands-Off-the-Supreme-Court League, today started to lead the female judiciary committee this afternoon that the women of America are opposed to President Roosevelt's Supreme Court plan.

"We urge you as our elected leaders to preserve the constitutional checks and balances established by the Constitution and insist on vote for Hands off the Supreme Court."

A group of 200 women members of the organization was assembled here to accompany Miss Curtis before the committee. Her advisers said it would be the largest crowd of women yet to attend the Senate hearings.

INVESTMENT EXPERT
Miss Curtis also represents the Women Investors of America, which has gone on record opposing the court plan. She is recognized as an authority on finance, particularly financial questions concerning women.

Enactment of the judicial plan will give President Roosevelt control of Supreme Court decisions and turn the Constitution into a "mere scrap of paper," Dean L. J. Toppel, of Coughlin, Law School, Omaha, Neb., charged today before the committee.

Dean Toppel declared control of the court's decisions was the goal of the President's plan. He warned that if any executive secured this power, all constitutional guarantees of liberty would be destroyed and "human rights made a 'mockery'."

DEAN SEES PERIL
Dean Toppel said the President had let it be known he desired a court composed of justices who either would let their views on legislative questions be advanced or "who will permit their determination of such questions to be dictated by other than the judges of the court."

"Otherwise what is there to be gained by all this?" he demanded. "If the time ever arrives when the determination of judicial controversies can be dictated by either or both of the political branches of the government, then the guarantees of liberty found in the Constitution will be gone and the Constitution will be a mere scrap of paper."

"If the present plan is adopted, it will accomplish the intended purpose."

Members of the association were advised, in a report made public by the paper committee, to use caution in making contracts for newprint.

It was pointed out by the committee that on March 18 the International Paper Company announced an increase of $7.50 a ton for the first six months of 1937 over current prices.

This, according to the report, brings to 110, or 25 per cent, the increase in newprint in the last three years.

The report suggested three ways to offset the "unusually and excessive increase":

1—Judicial condemnations; 2—Right control of returns; 3—Reducing the number of extra editions.

Rising costs of operating newspapers also came in for discussion. Colonel Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, mentioned his own newspaper's experience in selling below their real value.

By operating costs continue to increase, daily papers will be compelled to raise their price, he predicted.

Twice the youngsters narrowly escaped capture by sliding down drain pipes, where the men dared to follow. Finally he got cleanly away by descending an unguarded ladder near a back exit to the building and vanishing among the city's crowds.

Today's search is more than just finding an escaped prisoner. Even the elusive "Plainsboro," the cat burglar who has plagued Scotland Yard for years, never publicly.

Boy Outraces Police

19,000 HUNT HIM IN VAIN

London, April 22 (AP).—London's 19,000 policemen, all wounded in pride and some bruised of shins, searched today for one snub-nosed boy of 15, who has virtually defeated their organization since he escaped from custody in a wild dash across roof tops.

The boy, his identity guarded by British law, squirmed loose from his guard yesterday in juvenile court at Caxton hall, climbed through a window and scrambled to the roof.

Burly policemen ponderously followed. For hours they climbed over the tiles while the boy, sun-fortified as a monkey, dashed lightly

COL. KNOX SEES PAPERS FORCED TO RAISE PRICE

New York, April 22 (INS).—Increased cost of newprint was one of the principal topics discussed today at the 50th annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

HOPKINS, ICKES TO FACE QUIZ ON RELIEF

Washington, April 22 (INS).—Leaders on the House appropriations committee said today that Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administration head, and Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, will be summoned before the committee within 10 days to justify the proposed new relief program.

The committee, leaders predicted, will reduce the proposed WPA appropriation from the $1,000,000,000 suggested by President Roosevelt to $800,000,000, unless they are convinced that it is the minimum.

The new relief bill, providing for continuation of WPA for one year from July 1, will be linked with the administration proposal to continue WPA and permit the latter to use an unexpended balance of approximately $100,000,000.

"I think Congress is alive to the situation and there will be re-operation in cutting down expenses," said Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (D., Va.), member of the committee.

The proposed relief fund of $1,000,000,000 may be cut. Unless there is a showing that it is absolutely necessary to prevent suffering it will, in my opinion, be reduced. We would like to see less spent for materials and overhead and more for labor."

NEVER TOO LATE
Both are of the same size, 6% inches by 8% inches, regular encyclopedia size. The text is printed on high-grade paper of durable quality and pleasing finish. The type is large and easy to read, with the heading of each article in bold-face black type which makes it possible to locate the desired subject in a few seconds.

The book started last Monday in the Boston Evening American, but it is never too late to start clipping coupons. You can get your first volume weeks after it has been issued, and the Saturday, April 24, incidentally, is when Volume I will be ready at any of the coupon redemption stations.

In the papers already are numerous stories about the connection which, of course, reminds you about the abolition of King Edward because of his love for Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Remember Edward's opening words in his declaration: "At long last I am able to say a few words of my own..."

In the first volume of the encyclopedia are eight pages covering the story of the abdication that are exceedingly interesting. These pages are photographs of the Duke of Windsor, the ex-king; Mr. Simpson; the Archbishop of Canterbury; and the curious crowd outside Buckingham Palace that shouted, cheered and begged: "We want Edward!"

LITERARY LANDMARK
This, of course, is but one of the many interesting features in Volume I and it is just an example of what the other 14 books contain in the way of knowledge.

Remember that book-making is an art and this book offers—either binding—a masterpiece of encyclopedia, a landmark in American literature because it is bringing within the price range of every person the most up-to-the-minute encyclopedia on the market.

And all you have to do is reach for your scissors and in a snap you can give yourself a GIFT.

Persons who live outside of Greater Boston are requested by the Encyclopedia Editor to read the coupons on page 2 for the special mailing and packing rates.

Birthday Bridal for Wally, David; Duke of Kent to Be Best Man

PRINCESS WILL ALSO ATTEND CEREMONY

London, April 22 (AP)—Final plans are being completed to make Wally, Duke of Kent, the bride of the Duke of Windsor, their friends here declared today.

The date for the wedding of Wally, Duke of Kent, and the woman for whom he renounced his throne was expected to be either June 10, Mrs. Simpson's birthday, or June 23, the Duke's.

The ceremony, which their friends here will be attending by radio, will be held at the Palace, where Mrs. Simpson is now in residence.

Definite fixing of the date, however, was said to await the Duke's return from the chateau after Mrs. Simpson's divorce decree is made known after April 27.

Friends of Wally doubt if he will be in London before the coronation of King George VI on May 12, for although he says he is ready to give his brother a "robust" during the coronation.

The Duke of May was the earl, and his friends would not let him remain behind the two.

Despite reports of a last minute intention to stop the divorce, all authorities considered the divorce except for the technical application for the divorce, which can be made absolute at any time after next Tuesday.

It was understood that Sir Thomas Baring, the king's private secretary, who is charged with supervision of the divorce, was continuing to receive letters protesting against the divorce but they were considered the work of cranks.

The office of the protector would discuss any possibility of such as the arrangements, declared today.

This office reveals nothing to anyone. It is no part of the job of the King's protector to make any disclosure about interviews.

Only 1000 Actually To See Coronation

London, April 22 (AP)—More than 700 people—princes, princesses, peers and peeresses, ambassadors, envoys, commissioners and dignitaries—will throng Westminster Abbey May 12.

But only 1000 of them will come anywhere near seeing the act of the Archbishop of Canterbury as he takes the crown from the king and walks to place it on the head of George VI.

The other 6000, who will have waited for six or seven hours on the hard wooden stands, will see the king and the procession winding up the Abbey stairs.

About 500 will get a front view of the ceremony—those in the choir and in the front seats of the transepts.

Two and three of people in their specially built galleries in the nave will see practically nothing.

Most privileged onlookers include members of the royal family, the four specially picked workers who are the guests of the King of Clergy, some newswriters and radio commentators.

J. P. Morgan Pulls a New One

Second man behind the hat (try to find him) is J. P. Morgan, tricking camera men as he sailed for the coronation aboard the Queen Mary out of New York. The noted financier used the above "running interference" to skirt the lensmen and scurry aboard to demonstrate again his dislike for pictorial publicity.

Edward Sends Gifts to Royal Princess

Overcast, wet, in November 1936, Windsor, King, April 22—Princess Elizabeth, who may some day be queen of Great Britain, received a joyful surprise "package" while celebrating her 11th birthday—a long distance call from her "Uncle David," the Duke of Windsor.

The duke, speaking from his whitehouse at St. Wolfgang, Austria, besides the birthday party with the little princess a happy birthday. His call came during Elizabeth's party where a page informed her she was wanted on the telephone.

Besides the birthday party with the little princess a happy birthday. His call came during Elizabeth's party where a page informed her she was wanted on the telephone.

Her "Uncle David," the Duke of Windsor, sent the birthday presents to the throne he abdicated, two tennis rackets and a tiny gold wrist watch bearing the inscription, "Love from Uncle David to his favorite."

The charming young princess was hostess at her birthday party to which all members of the royal family were invited, including the

GEORGE PLANS REHEARSAL OF SPEECH

By DAVID P. SENTNER
Copyright, 1937, by International News Service.

London, April 22—King George faces the greatest ordeal of the new reign tomorrow in what will amount to a "dress rehearsal" of his public speaking part in the coronation ceremony.

For weeks, it was learned today, the shy King has been preparing for his first public address as a monarch, when he unveils a memorial to his father, the late King George V, at Windsor.

He is keenly aware that his subjects will judge from his talk whether he is recovering from the impediment in speech which has bothered him most of his life.

Tomorrow's speech will be used as a "yardstick" for the way George will deliver his responses in Westminster Abbey May 12 and how he will speak in the empire-wide broadcast coronation night.

The result of this test, it was reported, will decide whether the empire speech will be broadcast from a previously-made record, or delivered in person over a gold-plated microphone to his 700,000,000 listeners.

The Empire broadcast will last for 10 minutes, and King George will deliver his speech in words—the longest speech he has ever made. His speaking part in the actual coronation is limited to 20 words—mostly affirmative responses to pledges.

An Australian is to be responsible for the "King's" speech. George has been studying intensively under Lionel Logue, Australian expert on speech defects.

Incoherent, the King visits Logue in his office in Harewood, London, "street of doctors." Treatment includes, it was learned, technique of "four word" elocution. This involves enunciation of four words at a time separated by pauses for breath, which gives a certain rhythm of breath and expression.

The King is reported to be making remarkable progress, and he hopes soon to be able to talk intelligibly like his brother, Edward VII did.

At present the King prepares his speeches in advance, typed in capital letters on heavy parchment and delivered with the royal seal. Edward typed his own speeches, correcting and revising them himself, but George does not type.

"The King has a clear, strong voice, similar to Edward's,"

Radcliffe Girls Weigh Waters of World

FAITH OGDEN MARJORIE ERNST
H'O—they call it. But to you, you and you it's good old water from the kitchen faucet, no matter where it comes from. Here's Radcliffe girl chemists Faith Ogden, Class of '37, of New Milford, Conn., and Marjorie Ernst, Class of '37, measuring the density (weighing it) of waters from Japan, Norway, England and Cambridge.

Housewife's problem take second place in the interests of Radcliffe girls.

It is such intricate and highly scientific questions as the comparative density of tap waters in the far corners of the earth that interest the feminine college mind. At least, part of it.

And it's out of mere curiosity they pursue the elusive answer to the weighty problem. There is no practical application to the experiment.

"Maybe in a few hundred years," says Roger Vankar, assistant in chemistry at Radcliffe, "who knows?"

'QUEEN' Supplants DIVINE

TAKES CREDIT FOR ALL CURES

New York, April 22 (INS)—"Faithful Mary," first lieutenant of Father Divine, today seized the throne of the fugitive God of Harlem and proclaimed herself the true mistress of his earthly pastures and spiritual domain.

While the stubby little Negro cultist remained hidden from the army of detectives searching for him on a charge of felonious attack, the husky "queen" arrived in New York today to direct a rebellion against the man who calls himself "God."

"He never cured anybody; it was I who showed many the way to be healed by contacting the Spirit," Faithful Mary said. "They will follow me."

Detectives ended a day of searching without a clue to the whereabouts of Divine, wanted for allegedly attacking a process server and a companion.

They had served him with a summons in addition by Joaze Birtz, all, a former "angel," who charges that Divine seduced her and induced her to turn over all her earnings to him.

Divine, it was learned, escaped police at his Harlem "heaven" by fleeing over rooftops with his chauffeur.

N. N. Krasner, chief counsel for Divine, said: "I haven't the slightest idea where Father Divine is. I don't know when, if ever, he will surrender to face the charge."

HAPGOOD, FOUR CIO AIDERS HELD IN ME. RIOTS

Intention" he made the statement when Attorney Benjamin A. Area, of Lewiston, representing the defendants, protested the $2000 bail for each man.

"I thought this was a misdemeanor," Area told the court. "Two thousand dollars is in excess of the usual bail posted in such cases."

The judge then declared, in continuing the case until April 29: "Under ordinary conditions the bail is excessive but not now. I think the time has come when there must be a discontinuance of violence. While this situation continues, persons brought before this court will be given the limit. There have been acts of violence." Parks was released on bond posted by Adolph Norwood, a Lewiston resident. The other four were held pending the arrival of bail from Lewiston.

Before court arraignment Hapgood refused to state what developments he expected to occur later in the day.

PREDICTS VICTORY

"But I do predict complete victory in a very few days," he said. Shortly after Hapgood's arrest, the latter went into a secret conference with J. Howard Myers, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board who, apparently, came up from Massachusetts just to see the young Lewis chief.

After the conference neither would divulge its nature. Three hundred national guardsmen were sent to Auburn on orders of Governor Lewis O. Barrows to preserve order and after police resorted to drastic measures to subdue any demonstration.

Police clashed with the strikers to prevent any strike demonstrations in accordance with the injunction issued by Supreme Court Justice Charles McHugh on the strike and granting a temporary injunction against the strikers.

The clash between police and the strikers was precipitated by CIO retorts that the court ruling was a "miscarriage of justice" that "meant nothing."

Previous to Hapgood's arrest he had sent a telegram to the La Follette Senate Civil Liberties Committee in which he accused Maine manufacturers of hiring Boston private detectives.

Hapgood asked for "immediate investigation." During the Sacco-Vanzetti trial Hapgood was arrested on Boston Common for "inciting a riot."

SI KIDNAP HELD

In Auburn today Police Captain John J. O'Connell, after a quiet night throughout the city, said he had arrested an youth on attack charges resulting from a complaint by an 18-year-old shoe worker who he had been bound, gagged and dumped onto the porch of his home.

Police said the youth, Alexander Pelletier, had a sign tied to his back which read:

"Don't catch you rat." In this city two 30-pound concrete urns were thrown through windows of the home of Peter Lemieux. One stone narrowly missed a child. Police here also reported that two other homes were stoned.

WIRES TO WASHINGTON

Meanwhile other CIO leaders were bombarding Washington with telegrams protesting the use of National Guardmen while a telegram to Secretary of Labor Perkins urged "every effort to secure our rights under the Wagner Act which have been denied us by the courts and police of this state."

City Manager Frederick W. Wood, following Hapgood's arrest, flatly stated that recurrence of such violence as clubs, stones, fists and gas bombs, would bring martial law and more troops "to uphold the police and the courts."

It was Ford who had requested that the governor send in soldiers.

A MILITIA COMPANIES

Meanwhile, Governor Barrows, himself, promised to keep order by mobilizing all troops in the state, if necessary.

"I am prepared," he said, "to order out the entire military forces of Maine to preserve constitutional authority."

"A situation developed in Auburn which reached riotous proportions. In open defiance of law and order, strike sympathizers, using rocks, precipitated an attack on city police and enforcement officers, causing injuries to officers detailed there to keep order."

"More national guard companies will be called out, if necessary, because a situation arising from lawless acts of strike sympathizers or their organizers cannot and will not be countenanced in this state."

"I deeply regret the need of such extreme measure, but . . . when there is open defiance to

Troops, Guns Set to Subdue Further Violence in Maine

Trucks loaded with national guardsmen, heavily armed, rolled into Lewiston and Auburn today to repel any further threatened violence in the strike there. The Services Company of Portland is shown above arriving at the Lewiston army at 2 a. m. today. Bayonets were later affixed to the guns and a patrol of the streets started.

Orders of our court and our officers of the law, there is little difference from anarchy. We shall not tolerate this situation for a moment."

His first mobilization order sent eight companies of national guardsmen into the Lewiston-Auburn strike area. Citizens soldiers turned out of bed in a dozen towns and cities, hastily donned their uniforms and reported at armories for rifles, ammunition and marching instructions.

Under command of Colonel Spaulding Babes, the troops moved into barracks in Auburn. At dawn, they were at bridge heads and factory sites, taking guard duty, while police, armed through business streets, just beginning to enter into activity.

VIOLENCE FLARES

More recent violence flared up after Noon and other CIO speakers had addressed a mass meeting of 3000 strikers and sympathizers here in Lewiston.

The crowd then began to march across the river into Auburn "to pay a call on our friends in the shoe shops there."

Auburn and Lewiston police, reinforced by approximately half a hundred state troopers, met the strikers on the bridge between the two cities.

There was a pitched battle there, with final honors going to the strikers.

Hundreds of Lewiston strikers, however, filtered through police lines into Auburn and others, in larger groups, used other bridges and roundabout routes.

It wasn't long before there was a throng of several thousand CIO supporters milling about in the Auburn shoe district.

When police tried to disperse them the fighting began all over again.

Lewiston and Auburn city officials appeared to Governor Barrows, declaring themselves unable to handle the situation.

The calling out of the troops was the governor's prompt answer.

New Bedford Mill Strike Settled

New Bedford, April 22—Hymen Blumberg, New England director of the textile workers' organizing committee of the Committee for Industrial Organization, today announced settlement of a 30-day strike at the Goodyear Fabric Company here.

Blumberg said the company, a subsidiary of the Goodyear Tire Company of Akron, O., had agreed to recognize the union and to confer with it to determine the "machine" issue.

The machine issue—the number of machines an employee is required to operate—was the chief point in dispute, Blumberg said. Wages were not involved.

This is the secret—add Gulden's Prepared Mustard during the mixing. Then the blend of Gulden's finest quality mustard seeds, spices and mellow vinegars will cook right into the meat. Hamburgers will taste better than they ever tasted before! But only Gulden's achieves such goodness.

PARLEYS HELD IN 3 STRIKES

Efforts toward settlement of strikes in Clinton, Quincy and Lowell were continued by conciliators today.

An early ending of the Coleman Press, Clinton, strike was looked for after a three-hour conference between plant officials, union representatives and state and federal conciliators. The laws was quiet today by contrast to recent disturbances there.

A tentative agreement was reached in the strike of truckmen at the L. Grossman and Sons plant in Quincy after a conference with the state board of conciliation and arbitration. An agreement will be submitted to drivers for ratification.

Another tentative agreement was drawn up for strikers at the Waterhead Mills in Lowell by the state conciliation board.

Strikes of 250 girls in a Fall River dress shop was still in force after union officials could not come to agreement with David Green, shop proprietor.

Wheeling Steel Signs Union Pact

Pittsburgh, April 22 (AP)—The steel workers' organizing committee announced today a union contract has been signed with the Wheeling Steel Corporation, employing approximately 20,000 men.

DUCE, AUSTRIAN CHANCELLOR
HOLD PARLEY

Vienna, April 22 (AP)—Premier Mussolini met Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria today for a conference that political circles said would lead to a strong reformation of Italian support of the independence of her northern neighbor.

Well-informed sources declared that one of a number of developments since the two statesmen met last year were such as to undermine the close relations between Austria and Italy.

One of the developments currently considered in diplomatic circles in Rome was that Italy's growing friendship with Germany might play Mussolini's hand should Chancellor Adolf Hitler decide to wage a campaign for increased prestige in Austria.

Following separate luncheons, Schuschnigg and Mussolini met at the Pretoria for the start of the negotiations which may later be joined to Mussolini's yacht Aurora, anchored in the harbor.

TRIUMPHOUS WELCOME
The "Queen City of the Adriatic" gave the two a tumultuous welcome as they arrived in Venice as a result of the fact that they had fled from Rome when they fled from Rome.

As they made a triumphal tour of the city, decorated Grand Canal in a motor launch, tens of thousands cheered from both banks. The welcome of the historic old palace which rose from the water hung with priceless tapestries.

Though the two statesmen will meet together at the Palazzo Reale, the first Browning house in the city.

During the atmosphere of cordiality, Mr. Schuschnigg hoped to reach from the Duce's own lips a statement which would end the rapidly growing Italo-German antagonism and increase Italian economic activity in the Danubian basin.

TO EXCHANGE VIEWS
The meeting between the dynamic Italian and the mild, professorial Austrian took place in historic surroundings once part of Austria and often a target for her bombers during the World War.

Official sources termed the conference a normal exchange of views as the Rome protocols but some sources counted on it to forestall rumors of a cooling of Mussolini's zeal for the role of Italian guardian angel.

Diplomatic circles on the other hand have felt for some time that Mussolini was willing to abandon Austria to German demands for Anschluss (Union) to further his own aims with Chancellor Hitler.

Many believed the conference to be a prelude to a far more important meeting between Mussolini and Hitler, which has been reported set for May 4 at Berchtesgaden, Hitler's Bavarian retreat.

HAPSBURG PROBLEM
In addition to the bespectacled Schuschnigg's call for a showdown over Austria's position on the Rome-Berlin axis, the chancellor was expected to inquire the reasons for Mussolini's attitude toward the Hapsburg restoration and the effect on Austria of the new Tagman-Italian treaty.

The two problems were closely linked from Schuschnigg's viewpoint and were heightened by the efforts of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, to end the Hapsburg attitude of the Little Entente members to Italy.

The members of the Little Entente, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, already have signed treaties with Italy, bolstered by their mutual opposition to the Hapsburgs who now ruled much of the territory now incorporated in the two "friendly" states.

Ciano, who was at Mussolini's side for today's meeting, was subsequently reported to have succeeded in extending the same lineup to include Rumania, the third Little Entente state, in a treaty now being drafted.

LOYAL TROOPS
ROUT SPAIN
INSURGENTS

By the Associated Press

The Spanish government turned its mightiest guns upon insurgent strongholds in suburban Madrid today, shattering a rain of shells that has poured into the heart of the capital for 11 days.

Heavy bombardment of insurgent gun emplacements drowned out their cannonade and Madrid's long besieged defenders swiftly took the offensive.

Fighting savagely, government troops overcame the artillery barrage and led by hand-grenade throwers, blasted insurgents from trenches in the Urena suburb west of the capital and pressed further into their lines.

HEAVY DEATH TOLL
The incessant shelling of Madrid, up to today had rolled up a toll of more than 200 dead and 400 injured.

In the 11 days of shelling, insurgents had subjected Madrid to its heaviest artillery barrage in its experience of any capital in 20th century warfare.

Insurgent guns had turned to Gran via, Madrid's "Broadway" and other central parts of the city into a literal "no-man's-land," shattering buildings and tearing host into the streets.

BILBAO WAITS FOOD
In northern Spain, on the Bay of Biscay, the beleaguered Basque capital of Bilbao, loyal to the main government, anxiously awaited its food supplies.

With one freighter already being run as an attempted insurgent blockade of Bilbao, a fleet of six British merchant vessels awaited at St. Jean de Luz, France, for a chance to break through and carry food to the city.

R. T. MATTSON SUSPECT GETS 'LIE' TESTS

By ARTHUR J. QUINN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Worcester, R. T. Mattson, 29-year-old Charles R. Dickenson, 29-year-old wanderer, was held on a technical charge of vagrancy here today, then Mattson employed a "lie-detector" for questioning him regarding the Mattson kidnapping.

For more than an hour police interrogated the prisoner, with the use of the detector but the results were not revealed.

The prisoner, admitting having been near Tacoma, Wash., home of the slain physician Charles Mattson, was steadfast in maintaining innocence of any association with the crime.

It was his remarkable resemblance to the composite picture of the Mattson kidnaper that made authorities unwilling to release him.

PENS RANSOM DEMAND

It was this resemblance that caused the man's arrest, when Ralph Mattson, 29-year-old correspondent, whom Mattson had given the self-same wanderer a ride Tuesday night.

Dickenson was asked to write a series of words used by the Mattson kidnaper in his demands for $25,000 ransom money. Those demands were sent to the Department of Justice headquarters in the capital for comparison.

His fingerprints had already been dispatched to the Boston office of the G-men for checking with their file on the Mattson case.

The prisoner faces court here today, with Judge M. Walter Flynn having the choice of holding him without bail or committing him to 30 days in the jail at Howard.

G-MEN CHECK STORY

Either action would satisfy G-men. They want Dickenson held for at least ten days while they complete their checkup.

Valley barracks of the state police pending the court case. He had not "broken" under a 48-hour questioning, and he was allowed some rest before a new ordeal began.

The Federal agents made more than a dozen different photographs of Dickenson and also took a dozen sets of finger prints.

It was reported investigators had telephoned the Mattson home in Tacoma and that Dickenson was made to repeat the words uttered to a maid in the Mattson home by the kidnaper the night the child was removed from his home.

CHECK OTHER ACTIONS

Authorities declined to confirm the rumored long distance call. They admitted, however, that nothing was being left out to either contact Dickenson with the Mattson case or eliminate him entirely as a suspect.

Rhode Island state police officials said that the Mattson case was not the only matter they were checking as a result of Dickenson's arrest.

Police declared that during the long grilling that Dickenson has maintained his innocence of any connection with the Mattson case or any other killing anywhere in the country.

"I didn't have anything to do with the Mattson boy's death. I read about it in the paper. I was in Washington when it happened. I never hurt anybody in my life. This is the first time I have ever been arrested and I have wandered all over the country."

Officers Testify in Graft Trial

He had gone out seeking Greenon two nights after he allegedly had threatened her and her "boy" that he would kill her when the officer found the couple seated in an automobile before the home where she is employed.

The girl declared Greenon was in the driver's seat of the next door estate when she arrived home two nights after the alleged threat, that he attempted to make a date with her after she refused to do so on the grass with him.

TELLS OF FEAR

She testified that she was "scared" of the officer at first when he suddenly came from the drive way at 11:45 p. m.

In her direct testimony the pretty girl charged that Patrolman Greenon had made improper advances to her two nights after he allegedly attempted to extort money from her "boy friend."

Miss MacDonell testified she was sitting in an automobile with Daniel MacDonell of Lexington st., Everett, near the home where she works, when Patrolman Greenon poked a flashlight into their faces and ordered MacDonell out.

TWO NIGHTS LATER

"The next time I saw Officer Greenon," she said, in direct examination, "was two nights later. I was coming home and had reached the driveway of the house near Dodge, this was at night, after Mr. MacDonell had left me at Washington Village, she continued."

"Greenon stepped out of the doorway. He stopped me and asked if he had scared me, I said 'yes'."

"He told me he had to ring a bell and asked me to walk down to the box with him. He said we could sit down on the grass and talk. I said 'no'. He wanted to know if he could meet me at home that night and I said 'no'. Then he wanted to meet me Monday night."

"He wanted to know where I worked and I told him. I asked him if he was married and he said he wasn't. I asked him his name and he said 'Murphy'."

POINTS OUT PATROLMAN

Miss MacDonell then identified Patrolman Greenon in court as the man who, she said, gave the name of "Murphy."

Earlier in the trial MacDonell testified Greenon demanded to see his papers when he ordered him out of the car two nights previous to the officer's alleged meeting with Miss MacDonell.

"He brought me around to the back of the car and said he had a case against me for indecent conduct," MacDonell testified, continuing: "He told me to take the girl into the house, which I did."

"When I came out of the driveway I asked him if I could do anything about it and he said he would get in my car and talk to me. I drove him to a box he had to ring and on the way he said it would cost me about $30 in court. He said he was sorry for me."

OFFERED $5

"I offered him $5 and he said 'What's $5? Are you trying to insult me?' He asked me where I worked and what kind of work I did. Finally he told me to give him $10, to send it to his home, and that $5 was too small."

"He said 'I'll give you my name and address and you can call it. No money order or check, but just a $10 bill.'"

"He gave me his name on a piece of paper."

"Did you ever send him the money?" Assistant District Attorney Smith asked.

"No," replied MacDonell.

"When you offered him $5, did you know that was an offense, bribing a police officer?" Attorney Peter Byrne asked MacDonell in cross-examination.

"Yes, if he accepted it," answered MacDonell.

"Before the Brookline police heard you told me the same story you've told here," Byrne asked.

"Yes, exactly the same story," MacDonell denied he and Miss MacDonell were in a compromising position in the car. The witness said he found it difficult to talk to Greenon because "he was so savage."

NAMES RADIO ANNOUNCER

Another court sensation was the testimony of Francis T. Whitehead, Weymouth attorney, who brought the name of Knox Manning, well-known radio commentator now in Hollywood, into the case.

Whitehead said he had attended wrestling matches in Boston with Manning on a night in 1934 and they had had a "few drinks" in a tavern after the matches.

On the way home, Attorney Whitehead said, he was stopped by two police officers, one of whom asked him if he had been drinking. He said he had had some drinks and the officer said:

"You're drunk, get out of the car." Whitehead testified.

Whitehead refused the offer of Prosecutor Smith when he said he couldn't be sure the officer who topped him was Donovan, and that the officer had given him the name of Donovan.

"The officer said he would have to take me to the station," Whitehead testified. "I got in the police car and we drove a short distance and stopped. I told the officer I had some drinks but wasn't drunk. He finally said: 'All right, get in your car and drive on.'"

Whitehead said the officer had told him to call him on the phone in the morning. He called the Newton police several times but could get in touch with an "Donahue" he said he was not sure later.

He testified that he learned he had been stopped by Brookline officers.

325 IN NEWLY

Some time after, Whitehead said, he met Manning and the defendant Cilley in a hotel room and at Manning's suggestion he put $25 in an envelope and gave it to Cilley.

"Were you told by Cilley: 'Donahue is mad as a hatter, he wants to put you in jail?'" Smith asked.

"I think he made that remark. As I recall it, he said Donovan was angry because I didn't get in touch with him."

Whitehead said Manning had first suggested payment of $25. "He said it would cost me $25," the witness testified.

Robert P. Philp, handwriting expert, identified as Donovan's handwriting the name and an address on an envelope which Miss Doris Roddy, Brookline maid, had testified the day previous was recovered by her with a $5 bill in it.

Miss Roddy testified she had given the bill to Donovan as a bribe and he returned it because "everybody's talking about this."

PRISON PANTIES STAY Warden Defends Punishment Plan

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 22 (NS)—Warden Fred Hunt of the Granita Reformatory today voiced a vigorous defense of his method of disciplining prisoners by forcing them to sit in the prison rotunda in pink silk panties or mother Hubbard dresses.

In reply to the criticism of Chicago psychiatrists who termed the punishment as "filthy and dangerous," Warden Hunt said:

"I'd like to see a child in school with a dunce cap on his head."

Warden Hunt said that in the cases of some escaped convicts placed on display, he forced them to rough their faces in order to wearing girls' clothes.

Replying to the assertion of Dr. David Rotman, director of the Chicago Municipal Court Psychiatric Institute, that the warden's method is "mentally unhealthy and presents a grave danger," Hunt said:

"A town is not for the gangsters as Chicago has no business criticizing authority. I don't stand for any of the kind degree staff they use on prisoners there. Riddiculous is the best punishment."

STATE HOSPITAL HEADS MUM ON NORTON

Results of the regular meeting of Boston State Hospital trustees were given today, after it was learned that Josephine E. Thurlow, chairman, had sought authority to have Harold F. Norton, hospital superintendent, and three department heads at a secret conference. Norton, however, had refused to attend the meeting.

Although there has been no official statement, it was learned that Norton has been no longer at the hospital since the trustees' meeting. It was thought a final decision on the matter was un-dermined.

At the start of the meeting, Alexander M. Sullivan, business manager of the Boston school committee, said a statement in which he said no influence has been brought to bear on the trustees by Governor Hart.

Mr. Thurlow was appointed chairman of the trustees a few days after the governor took office and the hospital scandal was being widely publicized. Sullivan's statement was:

"At no time has His Excellency, the Governor or any officials of his office contacted me in any way, directly or indirectly, to suggest that Dr. Norton be removed from his position as superintendent of the Boston State Hospital. I have no doubt that any member of the board has this been con-cluded."

In my opinion all the trustees understood that Dr. Norton was to have a preliminary period of six months that the trustees might judge his ability to per-form the duties of superintendent to be in the best interests of the hospital and the patients."

Heartbeats After Death Machine Revives Lifeless Organs

St. Louis, April 22 (AP)—A new machine in which human hearts are revived after death and made to resume their normal blood-pumping function was demonstrated today before the American College of Physicians.

Dr. William B. Joints of Washington University described how he had brought more than 100 hearts back to normal functioning after they had ceased beating in the human body for as long as six hours and induced them to again take up their rhythmic beating.

In the Washington University apparatus the heart itself is the pump which forces blood through a sys-tem of pipes similar to those of the body.

An entire liver, kidney or other human organ, may be connected to the artificial circulation so that its behavior may be studied in ways not possible within the body.

Dr. Joints said, to determine how long a revived human heart would continue to beat after it has been started.

"We generally stop them after about six or seven hours," he said. "The vigor they show gives some idea of what a tough piece of muscle the human heart is."

Conditions of the body are duplicated as nearly as possible in the machine. The heart is placed in it as soon as possible after death and tubes are inserted into the heart tubes and outlets. The heart is then stimulated to beating.

The machine has already contributed a great deal of new knowl-edge concerning the physiology of the heart, Dr. Joints said.

Harvard Savant Reveals Human Electric Waves

Memphis, Tenn., April 22 (AP)—Electrical man, a new scientific aspect of human beings, was described today to the opening ses-sion of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The new human personality was found by means of sensitive ampli-fiers of electrical currents and pos-sible of brain, nerves and mus-cles. It was reported by Dr. Hallowell Davis, of Harvard Medical School.

He told of twins electrically so similar that they might have been the same individual. He described a brain cancer that revealed its presence by an electrical distur-bance.

He suggested that some forms of behavior and some mental pro-cesses are related to particular "patterns" of electrical activity which the amplifiers have revealed in human beings.

Two main types of human elec-trical currents have been investi-gated, nerve and brain.

In nerves he said the largest waves are only a few thousandths of a volt and last only one or two thousandths of a second. There may be from 20 to 300 of them in one second.

They are associated with the signals, or nerve impulses, to and from the brain and body.

The brain waves are not at all like the nerve electrical signals, they are slow, likely to be around 10 to a second, and have been iden-tified as the electrical beating of large numbers of brain cells acting in unison.

A quick rhythm has been found near a brain cancer. Coma, stupor, epilepsy, anesthesia, sleep, high activity and deep depression all cause changes in the brain elec-tricity.

GASOLINE USE IN BIG GAIN

Washington, April 22 (AP)—Fed-eral highway officials said today that states received $69,420,000 from taxes on more than 18,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline last year. States' receipts from this source were $619,677,000 in 1935. The Bureau of Public Roads re-ported a 10.8 per cent increase in motor fuel consumption compared with 1935, with every state except North Dakota showing a gain.

Every state imposed a gasoline tax levies averaging 3.65 cents.

Drygoods Group Head Praises Security Act

(Special to the Boston Evening American)
Los Angeles, April 22—"Justly and intelligently administered, the Social Security Act will render a great service to all elements of American life."

Expressing that opinion, Samuel W. Reyburn, head of the Associated Drygoods Corporation, New York, and a member of the Non-Partisan Social Security Commission, sponsored by the Hearst papers, de-clared.

"The United States has the re-sources, production capacity and human energy to provide con-stantly at least a fair minimum standard of life for all—but no legislation alone can insure that."

"Laws may propose a plan, but for it to succeed, public opinion must support it."

"For that reason, every citizen should contribute his energy in thought and action to secure the perfection and establishment."

The Social Security Act plan can-not survive an unswayed adminis-trative arrangement, Reyburn war-ned. He said:

"The United States probably will find—as England did—that planned security for its workers must be amended, modified and adapted to conditions as they are encountered in its application."

KILL FUGITIVE IN GUN FIGHT

Uniontown, Pa., April 22 (AP)—An escaped prisoner, hiding in a mine house at nearby Filbert, was shot to death today in a gun fight with police after he wounded one of the officers trying to arrest him.

Police fired 40 to 50 shots into the house and bursted tear gas through a window before the fugi-tive fell.

State Policeman Joseph A. Hof-fer, 39, was wounded in the abdo-men.

The prisoner, Hamilton Leftwich, a Negro, was one of six prisoners who escaped last week from the Fayette county jail.

Westboro Hospital Missing Patient 'Coma Girl' Here

A pretty mystery patient, taken to Boston City Hospital last night as a coma, was revealed today as Miss Anabelle Carr, 21, of Jamaica Plain, missing from the Westboro State Hospital.

On three previous occasions, within the last three years, she has been a patient at City Hospital as a result of sleeping poisons.

Miss Carr, who said she had come to Boston en route to visit her parents at Beverly, was picked up last night by motorists, who found her staggering in the middle of Commonwealth avenue, near Charlesgate West, Back Bay.

The motorists, David Beccoliti of Bowdoin street, Wintrop, and Raymond Hotter of Fountain terrace, Cambridge, drove the semi-conscious woman to the corner of Commonwealth and Massachusetts avenues, where they found a policeman.

Pair Kidnap, Beat, Rob Milton Man

Two men kidnaped Frank M. Little of Pleasant street, Milton, drove him in his own car through the streets of East Somerville, then beat him and robbed him of $25, he told Somerville police today.

Little, who is employed as a mechanic in the Boston Elevated bus garage on Washington street, Somerville, told he stepped into his car after he came out of a Washington street cafe. Suddenly, while in the car, he was seized by two men, who then drove him to his home.

The pair, Little said, drove his car through lower Broadway, beat him and then took the money from his inside coat pocket.

Little's car was found abandoned on Pinckney street by Officer Timothy Corkery, Sergeant Walter Reed and Patrolman John Dillaway watched the car for several hours waiting in vain for the bandit pair.

Blast Kills Painter

New York, April 22 (AP)—Charles Semo, 42, painter, was killed and two other workers were hurt in the explosion of an oil burner in the basement of three-story Brooklyn warehouse today.

Fishermen, Take Note!

Manila, P. I., April 22 (AP)—Two fishermen have died recently in odd accidents in the Philip-pines, straggling on live fish they swallowed after putting them in their mouths while re-baiting hooks.

Flying Girl Reporter:

Dorothy Bound For Coronation

(Editor's Note—Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, globe-girdling girl reporter, has sailed on the liner Queen Mary to join the staff of notables who will cover the coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth for International News Service and the Boston Evening American. Her following story was written just before sailing time.)

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN
International News Service Special Correspondent
New York, April 22 (INS)—I'm going to London to visit the Queen!

And the King, too, of course—and maybe a few dukes and duchesses thrown in for atmosphere, if I ever learn to distinguish the nobility from the proletariat.

I understand you count the Crimea here on their sleeve, subtract three, and then ask the nearest policeman.

Anyway, I sailed today on the Queen Mary—the coronation express—and being a simple American girl, unused to glitter, I can hardly wait to see London at what is known as the height of the coronation season.

I'm trying to see Big Ben and a real London Bobby (like the ones in English detective novels) and a real king, and a real London (for of which I have heard a great deal).

FUN AHEAD
It's going to be fun riding in Rotten row and listening to soap-box speeches in Hyde Park and walking down Piccadilly circus, fun to drink tea in the morning and tea again at 4 in the afternoon.

I want to sail a boat in the round pond and ride an English taxi and wink at a duke. (Those dukes keep cropping up.) I want to sit in the 18-inch seat allotted to me in Westminster Abbey on coronation day, and this I will do with great ease unless I gain weight going over.

Famously enough, although I have crossed the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, this will be the first time I cross in the crisscross manner—by ship. Usually I take airplanes.

HOOD WORKERS' FUND CREATED

A new disability fund, to pay increased benefits to employees during absence through accident or illness, has been created by M. P. Hood and Sons. It was announced at the company's Mutual Benefit Association annual dance in the Hotel Continental, Cambridge, attended by more than 800.

Under the new plan the disability fund will supplement benefits provided by the M. P. Hood Employees with less than five years of service will receive full pay for 15 weeks and half-pay for 30 weeks when absent through disability.

Employees with ten years of service will receive full pay for a whole year. In the past, disability benefits were paid to a maximum of $10 in any one year.

Harvey P. Hood, 2nd, company president, and Herbert J. Baker, president of the M. P. Hood, issued a joint statement declaring the new plan is second to none in the country from the standpoint of low cost to employees and maximum benefits.

The M. P. Hood also provides death benefits of $2000 at low cost, to which the company adds a free group life insurance policy worth $100 to $1200, depending on length of service.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

By DAMON RUNYON

thrill, especially the lady Britons.

He might have selected from his own immediate circle one that we feel certain would have been nothing short of a sensation in silk knee pants at the coronation. We refer to the Hon. Mr. Marvin McIntyre, the President's secretary, and an able and affable gentleman.

We once had the privilege and the pleasure of seeing Mr. McIntyre in a bathing suit, and we have no hesitancy in declaring that his underpinning, especially as displayed in silk knee pants, would prove a wonder to the Britons. They would wonder what was holding Mr. McIntyre up.

General Pershing is more of a leather-legging man. Admiral Rodman is the bell-bottomed type. Mr. Gerard is the peg-top sort. We would not give you two cents to see all of them put together in silk knee pants, but we would cheerfully pay $3.50 admission fee, plus government tax, to view Mr. McIntyre so arrayed.

We think Mr. Heywood Brown, the newspaper columnist, would have done us right proud in silk knee pants. We have seen Mr. Brown, too, in beach gear. He is an imposing figure of a man. He is high, wide, and some might say handsome. Those who hope to be remembered in Mr. Brown's will, for instance.

Knee Question
It would require a bit of silk to make Mr. Brown a pair of knee pants. Roughly, we would say, about the same yardage that it takes to cover the head of Zepherus. That is, allowing that silk knee pants are running to the good old skin-tight effect this year.

But in that array, Mr. Brown would be beautiful.

The only criticism that might be offered is that Mr. Brown's knees are of slightly unusual contour, and in silk knee pants the Britons might be unable to tell whether Mr. Brown was coming or going. We consider that a mere detail.

Mr. Gene Tunney, our former heavyweight champion, would have made a corking representative in silk knee pants. Mr. Tunney could display a pair of pins that once were the admiration of the world and served Mr. Tunney in better stead than any other legs we can think of offhand.

We imagine that Mr. Tunney's legs are not now what they used to be, as whose are? But in our opinion, dire emergency, such as the split pants that Mr. Dirksen hopes for, would find Mr. Tunney backpedaling out of the arena so rapidly that the astonished Britons would think that Mr. Dempsey still pursued.

Byrd Scientist To Receive Medal

Washington, April 22 (U.S.)--Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, senior scientist on the Byrd Antarctic Expedition of 1935-36, will be honored with a special gold medal of the National Geographic Society.

The medal will be presented April 27 to Explorers' hall of the society's administration building here by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president.

Fence May Guard Unknown Soldier

Alexandria, Va., April 22 (U.S.)--A fence is to be placed around the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the Revolutionary war, to protect it from vandals. Recently hunters have ripped six pounds of meat from the memorial, it was reported.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys should pass 3 lbs. of waste each day. If they don't, you're in trouble. Rinsol's Kidney Pills help you pass 3 lbs. of waste each day. Rinsol's Kidney Pills are the only pills that help you pass 3 lbs. of waste each day. Rinsol's Kidney Pills are the only pills that help you pass 3 lbs. of waste each day.

Unusual Legs
As a matter of fact, we cannot visualize any of the representatives named for the impending coronation in silk knee pants. We are sure that had Mr. Roosevelt known in advance that silk knee pants might be a requisite, he would have selected Americans calculated to give the Britons a real

A Good "Out"

There is nothing much they could do under the circumstances except to back out as gracefully as possible, perhaps remarking jocularly by way of covering their confusion that if England paid this country what she owes us, Americans could afford more durable material and better workmanship for its representatives' pants.

It is not definitely settled that our American representatives will wear silk knee pants at the coronation. It is all talk as yet. Every time there has been a coronation in Europe in the past seventy years or more, of sufficient importance to justify our sending representatives, there has been the same discussion. It is as inevitable as the editorial about a nation spending all that dough on a coronation when thousands of its people are starving.

Of course, this editorial will be as true today as it was a hundred, or two hundred years ago, but it seems to us unwarranted writing effort as far as getting anything done about the starving is concerned. Or about stopping the expenditure of the dough.

Silk Pantie Complaint

We always have some good old homespun American 'rarin' up on his hind legs and squawking about the idea of silk knee pants, though there is no vast difference between this garb and the plus fours that our fat and tired business men used to wear on the golf courses in the happy days when they had time and money to play golf.

However, we have no previous record of any American expressing the sadistic thought that the silk knee pants might split at the seams when our coronation representatives were tweaking their forelocks to the king. Loyalty to our country's flag should inspire every true American to abhor the very thought of any representative of this great nation ever being caught on alien soil with his pants split.

SOUTHERN FAVORED OVER CENTRAL IN WOMEN'S GOLF MATCH

THIS IS LIFE BY

Robert E. Rogers

Ever since I read and commented on "A World I Never Made" by James T. Farrell (Vanguard), the man who wrote the Studs Lonigan trilogy, the story of the decadence and death of a young Irishman in a Chicago slum, I have been trying to find something in a modern American novel which will take the taste out of my mouth and give Farrell's books the life I think I have found it.

"A World I Never Made" is probably worse than the "Studs Lonigan" books. Once more the author deals with very low class people in the Chicago slum. They are pretty dreadful, speaking of Farrell's books the life I think I have found it.

Book Without Vulgarities
Meta His Arguments

But I have found what I am looking for, a kind of American life about people who are very poor, unemployed, living on the bare edge of existence in the Bronx. The hero is a Communist of work. There isn't a dirty word in the book. There isn't a word of the slum which insists that we are hopelessly condemned by our economic environment and that every act of rebellion makes us hopeless victims of a degenerate, adolescent and foul society.

The book is called "All Brides Are Beautiful" and it is by Thomas Bell. It was published over a year ago by Little, Brown and Co. It is honest and truthful and humorous and probably applies to a thousand men of his class and environment, whereas Bell's book applies to ten. Farrell's book, of course, would be rejected with horror by most of the men and women and economic poets who describe Bell's book would, I think, be rejected as truth and enjoyed for its tolerance and honesty.

"All Brides Are Beautiful" is the story of a young man of the middle-class Bronx whose parents are not prosperous, who works for a Communist and who falls in love with Peter Cunningham, an unemployed machinist with ambitions to be a writer. She supports him until toward the end of the book she gets a night shift. He is a Communist who says many wise and sensible things about our social system, who is a good man, but who will take what job he can get on the ground that his wife is his wife.

Some of Decent People Are Rightfully Dull

They are not so well-off sophisticated but they are just as good fun. Their in-laws are as pleasant but they are persuasive and they have the impression of being real people. They are as they are likely to happen in life. Events give you the impression that they are going on being bad forever.

These are the kind of young people who stroll down the avenue trying to imagine what it would be like to be old and remembering their own beautiful and true passage worth a good deal of Mr. Farrell's verbal and dramatic monologues of the damned souls in hell.

The pleasant details of their lives, their midnight coffee and cake, their conversation on rainy Sunday afternoons, the way that they respect themselves and the best of what they admit from necessity is a rather bad job makes you feel that people are like that and that it is very different from the souls that are.

These are the kind of a more famous man than I. Mr. Bell is like the village idiot. Thomas Bell recognized as a human being dealing honestly with other human beings. He is not a man who curses nor caricatures the society of which all his characters are a part. Because he knows it is an essential part of society.

'IN-LAW' Trouble Told BY WIFE AMESBURY MAN IS SUED

Salem, April 22—Seeking separate support from her husband, James L. Woodson, wealthy dairyman and member of one of Amesbury's oldest families, Mrs. Devita P. Woodson testified in Probate court today that "mother-in-law trouble" caused a rift in their married life.

She asked Judge Harry R. Dow to allow her $50 a week for the support of herself and their seven-year-old son. She said her mother-in-law made conditions "intolerable" at her husband's home. She could get along on $20 a week, Mrs. Woodson said, but she really needs $50 a week for comfort.

Mrs. Woodson told of eight turbulent years spent at the ancestral home of her husband, a large dairy farm near Amesbury, and of frequent family fights with her husband and his mother.

Wed in 1929

When she married him in January of 1929, Mrs. Woodson said she was given to understand that the home would be hers, and that she should manage the household. She soon learned, however, that her mother-in-law was to be the dominating spirit in the house, she said.

Mrs. Woodson, a retired wealthy Jewish man, left her husband in 1938, and she went to live with her son in a small cottage of her father's, turned over to her by her husband.

Jealous in the Woodson household over the presence of a niece, Harriet Woodson, and her son had caused additional discomfort during the time she lived there, Mrs. Woodson said.

While she was living there, the young society matron said she was accustomed to the services of two maid in addition to the help of five hired men on the farm.

Tells of Quarrels

She had a car of her own, she said, and a blood-sucking horse given by her father. Her husband's quarrels with her were common talk among the help, she said.

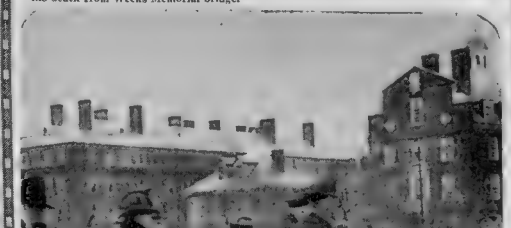

When she was playing bridge with her husband, her mother-in-law and a friend she failed to play the right club. Her husband said she should have played the club she left the table, she said. Then he struck her, knocking her on the couch and tearing her dress, she said.

Since January he has been paying $20 a week to her support, she testified, but said it is insufficient to cover her living expenses.

Harvard Witnesses a Death in Afternoon

In the late afternoon shadows of Harvard's ancient walls, Metropolitan police drag the Charles river for the body of James F. Keane, Chicago insurance man, who plunged to his death from Weeks Memorial bridge.

Scores of students and others watch fire men and police carry the body of the drowning victim to a waiting patrol after it had been recovered. In the background, Harvard buildings look stern, forbidding.

SAVE Parents IN LYNN BRAVE SMOKE TO ROUSE THEM

Hero and heroine at five years and three, little Bobby Dwyer and his sister, Barbara, groped through smoke in their Lynn home today, found the door of their parents' room and awakened them as fire crackled through the structure.

It was pretty frightening for a little boy and a little girl to get out of bed in the dark anyway, but with smoke curling up and choking them and chairs bobbing up in unexpected places to be bumped into, Bobby and sister had an awesome time of it.

The smoke had awakened Bobby in the Dwyer home, 202 Western avenue, which recently had been renovated.

Journey in Dark

Bobby reached over and shook Barbara into wakefulness and the two youngsters climbed out and started one of the first journeys they had ever made—a journey through the dark.

It took a little time to wake their mother and father, Alfred J. Dwyer, orchestra leader and printer in Lynn, but once he was up Dwyer called the fire department.

The firemen found $500 damage to the two-story house. Meanwhile, muzzling of apparatus and laying of hose lines tied up traffic along Western avenue, a main artery for more than 60 minutes.

At an earlier hour today seven persons were carried down dead, four of them overcome by smoke when fire raged through a two-story wooden duplex house in Lexington. Lexington.

Don Masks

Starting in the basement the fire spread such that it became near all occupants on the second floor were trapped. The first floor was a store.

When firemen reached the scene, a woman was pinned to the second floor windows and the terrified screams of the tenants could be heard.

Hardly speaking loudly, firemen forced masks and entered the two apartments. In one they found Mrs. Dwyer, who was pinned to the second floor window. Her three children, Andrew, 15, Charles, 11, and Anthony, 10, were partially overcome and in a state of semiconsciousness.

The aged woman was lowered to safety over a ladder and the three grandchildren, who, after crawling down by fireman, all were rushed to the First Boston Relief station where they were treated and later released.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN BY

Ruth Mugglebee

Women are faddists and life moves in cycles. Afternoons of contract bridge are slowly giving way to p. m.'s of needlepoint embroidery.

You know, that art which, in former years, was the piece de resistance of the genteel woman.

But, today, in the place of personal salons with costly overhangings and the like, the expensively starred hostess does the honors for a group of friends, bent on pursuing the course of the color-threaded needle over an expanse of 18th century design.

Women are sponsored in this page in a new cycle of leisure enjoyment. They arrive in their automobiles, NOT with knitting materials, a passing fancy, NOT for card playing, but for the pictorially designed canvas of embroidery.

And as they sew, they talk. Hence the 18th century is coming to life in this day and age with the Madam proudly displaying a Louis XV or a Louis XVI occasional chair or an English piece which her deft maneuvered fingers have worked out to perfection.

So, if you want to be the smart hostess, the smart thing to do is to invite your girl friends for an afternoon of needlepoint, eventually to be transformed profitably into a delightful piece of French or English furniture, to complete the effect of a traditionally lovely home.

Art That Antedates
Even Homer's Writings

The art of needlepoint is an old one. The Jews seem to have acquired it from the Egyptians, according to history. And, if you have read your Homer and who hasn't, pray tell, you'll find he makes frequent references to it.

And to the fact, also, that Phrygia was celebrated for its embroidery, in great demand by the mighty moguls at Rome.

Through the 18th century the art of pictorial needlework was of the highest importance both as a recreation and as an industry. And also as a gauge of social status. For it was the woman of gentility and refinement, of cultured tastes, who remained within the cloistered walls of the drawing room to create patterns for color-threaded design.

Important days in local political circles are scheduled for the next few months. Judge Michael J. Murray of the municipal court will shortly reach his 70th year. And, if the bill giving judges 1 year pay goes through, he will retire.

David Lasker, the Rep. Com. chairman, is slated for the post, since before taking that. Also, if the bill goes through, wait for Supreme Court retirements. Judge Joan C. Crosby hasn't sat on the Supreme bench for three months... he is recuperating from an illness...

Tufts Professor Knows
How to Keep Young

How to keep young doesn't seem to bother Professor Bernard Goldberg of Tufts Medical School and his wife, Mrs. Ethel Goldberg. They evidently have found the secret. The professor sleeps in the open air all year round; and he has a washing-board body (minus an ounce of fat) and is a figure skater of no mean fame. At 40 he looks about 30. Mrs. Goldberg, to keep young, attends dancing school three times a week.

KEY IDENTIFIES RIVER VICTIM

Medical Examiner David C. Dow of Cambridge was preparing a report today on the death of James F. Keane, 35, a Chicago insurance man, who drowned in the Charles river after a plunge from Weeks Memorial bridge, near the Harvard business school.

ACADEMY STUDENT HELD IN $30 THEFT

With Assistant U. S. Attorney William T. McCarthy indirectly applying for remarks to U. S. Commissioner Harry H. Guterman, a student at the Academy was held in $30 from the grand jury in federal court today.

The youth was charged with theft of $30 from a branch postoffice at Newbury. His appearance in court yesterday afternoon was followed by an open clash between the commissioner and the government attorney.

Referring to the remark that he would not bring any more cases before Commissioner Guterman, but would leave them directly to the grand jury, McCarthy declared, "I should not have said that."

Florida Training Stars Get Cold
Fails to Benefit On Hitting North

By JACK CONWAY

IT MIGHT BE better baseball wisdom for the Bees and Red Sox to do their Spring training in Newfoundland or in Montreal rather than in sunny Florida.

Mr. Boston

The various types of New England weather the Bees have experienced since their home coming has convinced Bob Quinn that something should be done about it.

The schedule makers thought they had solved the weather difficulty when they delayed the date for the opening of the season.

They shook their heads sadly and admitted they had been in error when the temperature dropped to 50 degrees and either East winds or rain swept most big league diamonds.

Baseball owners and managers are now willing to admit that Northern weather is very uncertain until the early part of May.

The Bees were fortunate to get such splendid weather for their holiday opening with the Phillies, and should be able to overlook a few cold, bleak days.

Bill McKeehin, of course, would like to have kept his club in action. He is anxious to win as many ball games as possible and is not concerned even as to the number of cash customers it may turn out to witness the festivities.

FLORIDA BASEBALL TRAINING

I DO NOT believe training in Florida, where the mercury is usually between 70 and 80 degrees, is beneficial to ball players who may later be called upon to play under the kind of adverse weather conditions that are so common to Boston and most parts of the East during April.

Of course, I can appreciate how the ball players and the officials of the clubs like the swanky life of the Florida winter resorts.

There is breakfast on an open porch, a few hours of baseball practice, luncheon indoors so as to keep as far from the hot noon sun as possible, a round of golf in the afternoon, a full course dinner, and an evening at a dog track or at the local movie house.

Ball players can always dream of getting base hits and winning pennants while cooling their brows under the tropical skies. There is something about a winter in Florida that makes every thing appear very pleasant.

I'll admit the ball players get into good condition while in Florida. Later they are obliged to start North, and soon they are playing under adverse weather conditions.

The stars then begin to get cold, the pitchers find their salary vests getting stiff, while the club takes on the air of an Arctic expedition.

Instead of sipping their orange juice on the open porch of their hotel, the players fight for position next to radiators in their hotel as they have breakfast.

They wonder why somebody has not been able to transfer the franchises of the big league clubs to Florida where there would be everything but gate receipts. The managers might be induced to go for the Florida idea themselves if their players would consent to take grapefruit and oranges at the payoff window.

HOT SPRINGS 'AS CAMP

THE FIRST time I ever went South with a ball club was in 1914 when the Red Sox under Bill Carrigan trained at Hot Springs, Arkansas. One would often get up in the morning to find snow on the Ozark hills. The sun never got really warm until mid-day.

On rainy days Bill Carrigan would send his players racing over the Ozark hills. In those days I could outrun any member of the Sox squad in the long trek over the Ozarks.

If I were called upon today to do any hill climbing, I would insist upon using one of those new army tanks which keep going forward regardless of what obstacles they may encounter.

When the Sox returned to Boston from Hot Springs, they were accustomed to having some cold weather, and they usually got off to a flying start in the pennant race.

The Sox later drifted South to New Orleans where they experienced occasional rainy, cold days.

In late years most ball clubs have gone to Florida. They have helped advertise some of the town's boom.

Even Miami used to invite ball clubs to share its hospitality, but when real estate boomed and hotel rents went soaring the Magic City decided to let the diamond heroes go elsewhere.

The neighborhood drug store never experienced any great boom when a ball club was in town. The average big league ball player limits his dissipation to one glass of pop, or possibly an ice cream soda. Ball players adopt the Dutch treat system when they step out for a large evening at a soft drink spot.

AVOID HOTEL DINING-ROOMS

WHEN ON the road, ball players are usually allowed $3 a day for meals. They avoid hotel dining rooms where the price of food is usually high, and may be found dining at the bit and run restaurants. The old style lunch wagon was always the ball player's paradise.

A ball player usually manages to get the price of his laundry as well as the cost of other incidental expenses out of his $3 a day food allowance.

There are, of course, a few exceptions to this rule, but they are as rare as ball players who can hit home runs like Babe Ruth. I have never been able to verify the report that one prominent big league ball player not only paid for his food, laundry and incidental expenses out of his $3 a day allowance, but that he also managed to chisel enough off this sum to buy a new suit.

I don't even believe a ball player could sharpen a chisel to that extent.

Urbanski to Make Trip With Bees; Ready Soon

By JOE CASHMAN

Every member of the club with the single exception of Wally Berger will be along when the Bees leave for a series with the Giants. The weather man put a crimp for the second time and forced the Bees and Phils to remain idle.

Little Gene Moore, whose wrist injury was expected to keep him out of action for the remainder of the week, will be in his regular rightfield spot against the Giants in New York tomorrow.

Billy Urbanski, who has been bawled out for weeks with an ankle sprain, isn't quite fit for action yet, but he's been taken in the expectation that he'll be ready to play early next week.

Manager Bill McKeehin hasn't decided whether he'll use Urbanski at third or short but he's determined to take advantage of "Barber Bill's" punch as soon as possible unless there's an immediate and surprising improvement in the team attack.

Mayo Out

Moore's return, of course, will greatly bolster the offense. Not only is Gene one of the most powerful sluggers in the league but with him in "griffard," Frank McGowan can be moved to leftfield and Deke Garna sent back to third base in place of Eddie Mayo.

All the same from present indication, the club will still have used of Urbanski's attack when the veteran infielder is able to play. "Terbaker" Jack Lanning is McKeehin's first round choice to face the Phils this p. m. The second choice is Lou Pette.

Ira Hutchinson, who had been slated to start yesterday if weather had permitted a game, has been sidetracked for the time being, evidently until further notice.

The big Chicagoan claims to be completely recovered from the back injury which he suffered in Florida, but there would be danger if he were to try to go nine inches in this kind of weather, as McKeehin has decided to use him sparingly until the afternoon warm up.

Eight Games

Wilkesburg Wills' only pitching worry is how to keep some of his hurlers from going stale.

It's a week since either Billy Wain or Pette have been on the mound. Lanning has worked only two innings over that period. And two of this trio won't step out again before Saturday at the earliest, for Danny MacFayden is slated to hurl against the Giants in New York's National League opener tomorrow.

The Bees are carded to play eight games on the trail. They're down for three tilts at the Polo Grounds, two in Brooklyn and three in Philadelphia.

With an inaugural as well as weekend games with the champions Terryman, the trip should be a huge financial success, if nothing else.

Wally Sits Down With "Night Pink Final"

'Night Pink Final Is My Favorite,' Says Berger

There's one bright spot slicing the gloom for Wally Berger, forced out of the Bees lineup for at least three weeks with a fractured finger—the Night Pink Final's first birthday party at the Club Mayfair on the night of May 4.

"I'm looking forward to it," Wally told a Boston Evening American reporter today when he dropped in with a cameraman to find the story slinger very much disheartened by the injury.

"The Night Pink Final is my favorite," Wally revealed, pointing out that he finds it even more valuable now that he is on the sidelines and forced to take most of his baseball in type.

Wally has the Night Pink Final rushed to him so that he can get across in the American and National League and check the Bees and Red Sox box scores.

LOW Big Hit at Oakley Fletcher Comes Into His Own At Buffalo

This is the third article by Joe Cashman on Elbie Fletcher. His first best find, who was "discovered" in a contest conducted by the Boston Evening American.

By JOE CASHMAN

With his diploma from Milton High School in his pocket, Elbie reported back to Judge Fuchs in June of 1934, ready and anxious to continue his pro baseball career.

Pressure had been brought to bear on him to consider entering college the following fall, but he turned a deaf ear to it.

He had set a major league berth as his goal and was going to take the shortest possible route to it.

The Braves at the time operated the Marietta club as a farm team. Elbie was sent to that New York Penn League team, then managed by Eddie Orlow, who now runs the Bees' farm at Columbia.

The New York Penn League is said the strongest and toughest. Elbie proved the clubhouse defender first baseman in the top and coming fast after a slow start, finished with a batting average of .300.

Down South with the Braves, he showed marked improvement, but he wasn't yet ready for fast company. He hit .300 in the top and coming fast after a slow start, finished with a batting average of .300.

He showed promise of power at the plate but he was making the mistake of trying to pull every pitch, and because of force batted his way out of the New York Penn League the time he was here.

Elbie was a positive asset in the New York Penn League. He hit .300 in the top and coming fast after a slow start, finished with a batting average of .300.

As a result of the last month of the season to see if he could play in the major leagues, he was sent to the New York Penn League.

He did a better job there than he had in the New York Penn League. He hit .300 in the top and coming fast after a slow start, finished with a batting average of .300.

He showed promise of power at the plate but he was making the mistake of trying to pull every pitch, and because of force batted his way out of the New York Penn League the time he was here.

He did a better job there than he had in the New York Penn League. He hit .300 in the top and coming fast after a slow start, finished with a batting average of .300.

He showed promise of power at the plate but he was making the mistake of trying to pull every pitch, and because of force batted his way out of the New York Penn League the time he was here.

Elbie was a positive asset in the New York Penn League. He hit .300 in the top and coming fast after a slow start, finished with a batting average of .300.

As a result of the last month of the season to see if he could play in the major leagues, he was sent to the New York Penn League.

TECH Crew Off to NASSAU RACES TIGERS, CRIMSON

Bill Haines, veteran M. I. T. crew coach, today leads 50 of his oarsmen to Princeton, where on Saturday they will participate in the Compton Cup races against the Tigers and Harvard.

The races will be rowed over the mile and three-quarters course on Lake Carnegie, admittedly one of the finest courses in the East.

Tech's veteran oarsmen are filled with hope. The crew who will power variety or junior variety sweeps there are only three sophomores.

Tariff Agreements
BENEFITING FOREIGNERS
More Than Americans

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer
New York, April 23
With all the current rumors and talk about gold and the treasury buying price, the following letter to this writer is interesting.

The author is the head of a major American corporation, running a world wide business with factories in many countries. He writes from the letter arriving today:

"I might commence with the first use of it as a gauge of values and cover the effect of Grant's action in the 70s, when the government was persuaded

"Dangerous ground could be covered in your own style as to the situation when our country will be forced either stop buying all the goods and services produced in the United States or to stop buying them altogether."

"Unless an agreement can be reached to 'stabilize' it a source the increasing flood to world production promises an inflationary result which may be far reaching it might be a crash we have had so far."

"Silver is in the pot too, but as long as it is not used as a medium of exchange, it is not a threat to the gold standard."

"As I am writing, and the adjustment in the French is being made, the gold standard is being adjusted to the new situation."

"Another story, too, is the possibility. It is said here foreigners are fighting the war in Spain—that 60,000 Russians and 22,000 French are aiding the government (loyalist) forces, several thousand Italians with Franco.

"It is said England favors the government (loyalist) side,

"Certainly it would be a thing to end the Spanish war quickly."

ed States had reciprocal pacts in 1938 shows that our exports to these nations increased by 14 per cent over 1935, whereas our exports to all countries increased only by 5 per cent.

However, in order to achieve this moderate increase in exports, most of our goods had to be sold at a loss. The cost of production was mostly raised, because increased costs of manufacture could not be passed on to customers. That and progressive lack of working capital, bankrupted most of them."
